Letter to Cleveland Club

In the name of the University of Dayton Alumni Association, I would like to express our deepest thanks to the Cleveland Chapter for the "Open House," conducted at the Carter Hotel, following the Flyer victory over John Carroll.

The Cleveland Chapter proved to be excellent hosts and a very good time was enjoyed by all present. The activity at the Carter seemed to be a preview of Homecoming.

Thanks for everything.
Sincerely,

Mary Shay.

Alumni Secretary.

WHO WILL RECEIVE IT?

The "Flying Cleat," a new football exchange trophy, will enhance the traditional rivalry between the University of Dayton and Marshall College beginning with the 1948 season. The prize, a brightly gilded football shoe, owes its present vaunted position to the rummaging of Athletic Director Harry Baujan and the fertile imagination of Publicity Director Hugh Brown. Exactly how the "Flying Cleat" idea originated is a trifle vague, but the story goes something like this.

It seems that Baujan, perturbed by the glowing press notices the '48 Flyers have been receiving, happened across an old football shoe that belonged to one of his all-time stars. Seizing the shoe, he burst into the squad's dressing room and announced to all the present-day hopefuls, "When you guys get so you can fill this shoe you'll be ball players."

Brown heard about the incident and, sensing a story, managed to cop the shoe from Baujan's office. He painted it a glistening gold, christened it the "Flying Cleat" and, to lend authenticity to the name, had it flown over the mountains to Marshall in a chartered plane with the understanding that the Thundering Herd would have the shoe in its possession when it opens Dayton's home stand on October 9. The idea was enthusiastically received by both Dayton and Marshall supporters. Contests between the Flyers and the Herd have been held almost yearly since 1932, and the addition of a trophy will undoubtedly sharpen the already keen competition between the two schools.

The "Cleat" will rest on a pedestal along the sidelines during the Marshall game. After the contest the score will be placed on the shoe with black paint and it will go into the trophy case of the winning school until the two teams next meet on the gridiron.

Carroll Bows to Flyers, 26-18

LATE BULLETIN:

Flyers Lose to St. Bonaventure 7-6 at Olean, N. Y.

Flyer boosters, students and alumni who set up the pre-season chant that this is U.D.'s year are making with the "I-told-you-so's" after witnessing the team in action for the first time this year against John Carroll, Friday, Sept. 24, at Cleveland Municipal Stadium. The Flyers were off to a flying start, defeating a highly-keyed Blue Streak eleven in a thrill packed demonstration of brilliant offensive maneuvering by two teams well-schooled in the T formation. All the elements of a grudge match were present in the game which brought two long-time school coaching rivals, Joey Gavin, formerly of Cleveland Holy Name, and Herb (Skeeter) Eisele, from Cathedral Latin, meeting for the first time on a college level.

Dayton went into the game a two touchdown favorite on the basis of its line strength and reserve depth, and in the final analysis it was as these two factors that spelled the difference. Carroll, highly touted as passing specialists, came through as expected, connecting for all three of their T.D. via the air-lanes. Dayton looked brilliant on the ground and sparkled generally on offense. The defense was sometimes ragged and a few lapses on pass defense gave momentary heart failure to the 1500 screaming Dayton fans who followed the team by train, car and bus to Cleveland.

Artful Art Bok again proved himself a great all-around ball player by uncorking a spectacular 75-yard touchdown gallop on the opening play of the second half, as well as preventing a sure Carroll score by overtaking Taseff, the Streaks' fleet-footed fullback after a 60-yd. chase.

"Chief" Toscani and Joe Zaleski, alternating at quarterback for the Flyers, put on an aerial show of their own, setting up three of the four Dayton tallies with passes. Jim Hammy, Flyer All-Ohio guard, played his usual rugged game, and Bill Gutbrod, scrappy left end, had a terrific night in front of his home-town Clevelanders. Little Bill McKinley, who managed to win the coveted starting post at right half, displayed a lot of speed and drive, promising to supply Gavin with an unexpected one-two punch at the halfback posts.

Dayton scored its first points only six minutes after the initial kick-off. Carroll had elected to receive. Moran took Otten's kick on the goal line and returned to the 27. Kilfoyle, Carroll's passing ace, connected on the first play to Moran in the left flat for a first down to the Streaks' 41. Taseff drove to Dayton's 48 and another first down on three tries. After two incomplete passes and a loss of five yards on a third, Petkovik punted to Zaleski and Dayton took over on their own 22. Bok skirted right end for a first down to the Flyer 34. Two line plays failed before McKinley galloped over left tackle for another first down. A pass from Toscani to Gutbrod was complete to the Carroll two-yard line. Ray Janaszek bucked left guard for the score on the next play. Otten's placement was wide. Dayton 6, Carroll 0.

The Blue Streaks lost little time in retaliating. Moran took Otten's kick on the 2 and returned to the 18. On the third try Taseff ripped through for a first down to the Carroll 35. A third down pass from Schaeffers to Janiak was good for 59 yards and the tying touchdown. Kilfoyle's placement try was blocked. Dayton 6, Carroll 6.

Zaleski's pitching arm accounted for another tally in the opening minute of the second quarter. His first toss to Bok took the ball to the Carroll 37, and after one running play he again threw, this time to Babione in the end zone. Otten's kick was good and Dayton lead 13-6.

The Flyers third score came on the very first play of the second half. Carroll's kick-off was returned to the Dayton 25. On the next play, after faking a hand-off to the right half, Toscani gave to Bok, who found a hole at right guard. He knifed through, picked up two interferences, and travelled 75 yards unmolested for the touchdown. Otten again split the up-rights and the score stood Dayton 20—Carroll 6.

Midway in the third period, the Blue Streaks tallied again, this time by virtue of a blocked kick, which gave them possession on the U. D. 35. Moran stood all alone on the Dayton 5 to snag Petkovic's pass, and stepped into pay dirt. The attempted placement was blocked, and Carroll trailed 20-12.

Exactly three plays later Dayton nullified the Streaks' latest bid. A long Toscani pass from mid-field to McKinley on the fifteen was good for six points. This placement was missed, but Dayton still led, 26-12.

The Clevelanders' final score came in the final minutes of the fourth quarter. Carroll had the ball on Dayton's 32, when Morgan evaded the Flyer secondary to grab Shaffer's pass in the end zone. The kick was no good, and the ball game went to the Flyers, 26-18.

Taking a Look at the Other Games

With the John Carroll game neatly tucked away in the win column and the outcome of the Bonaventure tilt not known as this magazine goes to press, it might be well to look at the remaining eight contests on the Flyers' schedule and see what the opposition has to offer for the '48 season. The Flyers will be operating the T for a second year and have a better appreciation and understanding of its potentialities. This year looks for Dayton to be delving into the finer points of the offensive, including various combinations of flankers, splits, and men in motion. Just how the opponents have revised and improved their techniques over 1947 can't be ascertained till later in the season, but here's some "scoop" on what we can expect.

MARSHALL

Marshall, who will provide the opposition for the home opener, October 9, will be battling to improve their all-time U.D. record of four wins against six losses. Last meeting in 1946 ended in a 29-7 win for Dayton. This year, however, Marshall has the same players who molded an impressive 7-2 record last season and are showing a greatly improved club. They were snowed by Miami's power house 38-6 in their opener, but came back the next week to knock off Morehead State Teachers, 19-7.

TOLEDO

The Rockets are carrying 14 players who won berths on post-season honorary teams, and still have the majority of the squad that handed last year's Flyers a close 14-13 defeat. Some indication of Toled's power may be noted in the 42-0 drubbing they handed Bates this year. Last week the Rockets were beaten by a superior Detroit eleven, 36-0, but that's no indication of their real strength.

ST. LOUIS

St. Louis University's Billikens will churn U.D. turf in the Flyers' only home Sunday game on October 24. Head Coach J. V. Maniaci, former Chicago Bear star, packs the know-how to carry Billiken football to the heights reached by the university's great court teams of recent years. Tangling with a club definitely on the upsurge is always tough and Gavin and crew are setting their sights and digging in for this one. So far this season St. Louis has soundly beaten Dubuque, 26-6, and lost a tough one to Drake, 14-0.

XAVIER

Xavier, traditional rival of long standing, will be out for revenge when Dayton meets them on Muskie ground, Oct. 31. The Flyers dubbed the Muskies 38-6 last year in a game that was tough for the proud Xavier-ites to swallow. A new crop of highly touted frosh has come up to strengthen the already formidable X squad, which opened its 1948 season by thrashing Eastern Kentucky 31-0. A powerful Kentucky University team defeated Xavier in their second game, however, 48-7.

MIAMI

Miami, Sun Bowl Champs and hottest southern Ohio team in 1947, took U.D.'s measure in 1947 and will be out to do it again when the two T-offensives clash in Dayton November 6. This year's model of the Redskins still has such name stars as Mel Olix, Paul Shoults and John Weaver, and is rated every bit as tough as the '47 aggregation. So far this year they have soundly thumped Marshall 38-6 and tied a favored University of Virginia team, 14-14.

OKLAHOMA CITY (Homecoming)

The Homecoming game, Nov. 13, will feature the first intersectional meeting of tough, capable Oklahoma City and an inspired Flyer club performing for thousands of grads. The 1948 Oklahoma City-University of Cincinnati conflict offers a sketchy basis for comparison as the oil country club fought U.C. to a close score in losing. As the ALUMNUS goes to press, we have information on only one of the Oilers' '48 contests—that a 14-7 win over North Texas.

IOWA STATE TEACHERS

Last home game of the year pits a powerhouse from the tall corn country of Iowa against the Flyers, Nov. 20. Iowa State Teachers on U.D.'s schedule for the first time, holds five consecutive North Central Conference titles and has three Little All-American honorable mention players on the roster. So far this season they were outgunned in their opener by Iowa State, 27-7, but bounced back to smother Morning-side, 32-0.

CHATTANOOGA

Final game of the year could develop into the spectacular game of the season when U.D. and Chattanooga tangle in Tennessee, Nov. 25. In losing to the Moccasins last year, 19-13, U.D. was on the march when stopped by the gun, and the Flyers see victory despite a Chattanooga team scheduled to meet major opposition in 1948. Last week the Moccasins surprised the experts by holding a nationally famous Georgia team to two touchdowns, in losing, 14-7.
